Famous for our Murals

Danville and Vermilion County are well known for their wall murals.

It began with a Walldog sign painter's reunion held here in the summer of 2010, when approximately 125 artists came from as far away as New Zealand and British Columbia to transform downtown Danville, literally overnight.

More murals popped up in Danville, and other Vermilion County towns, illustrating our area's pride in our history and art.

Check out our website www.visitdanvillearea.com for other murals in our communities.

To check for updates or arrange a group tour of the initial murals, email info@danvilleareainfo.com or call 217-442-2096.

VERMILION COUNTY, ILLINOIS

A bustling river town was the dream of Dan Beckwith when he first came to Vermilion County. Beckwith donated twenty acres of the first eighty and platted the town into lots north and south of Main Street, and east and west of Vermilion.

Amidst the chants of auctioneer Harvey Luddington, on a warm morning on April 10, 1827, the town of Danville was born. The new county seat was established, and brave entrepreneurs attend the sale and settlement of the first forty-two lots.

Coal mining, railroading, and manufacturing, Danville has had them all. Today, nestled within the area of natural beauty and abundant resources, Danville still has a lot to offer those who follow in the paths of the first settlers.

Vermilion County was established January 18, 1826 and comprises 898 square miles. Danville is the county seat. Vermilion County is served by a number of commercial rail routes, as well as Interstate 74 and the Vermilion County Regional Airport.
